Peterson, Ladner call for new jail facility

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.
Sheriff-elect Ronnie Peterson and Beat Three Supervisor-elect Roger

Ronald A. Peterson
Dale Ladner both cited a new Hancock County jail among primary goals of their upcoming administrations.
Chancery Clerk-elect Mike Necaise,

County School Superintendent-elect Billy Sills, Peterson and Ladner are four newly elected county officials along with one constable and two justice court judges who will be officially installed during inauguration ceremonies 9 a.m. Monday.

Mike Necaise

"The sheriff's department needs a new jail and office more than anything else. Our jail is overcrowded and obsolete," Peterson said.

"We need funds for hiring one more deputy so we can have a deputy in the rural county area at all times. Probably a deputy in the Kiln area would improve our response capability in the northern part of the county," Peterson stated.

Billy D. Sills

The sheriff-elect noted the is considering Deputy Nathan Hoda, a Kiln native, as one of the deputies for that assignment.

"Eventually, I would like to see a substation located in the Kiln, on Hwy.
43 or there's been some talk of locating in the new fire station at Diamondhead," the sheriff-elect said.

Peterson wants the county to purchase uniforms for prisoners so that nonviolent inmates could work on county installations.

He sees this move as a benefit to the county as an available manpower source and positive therapy for prisoners.

"We will change weekly prisoner visiting hours from 1-2 p.m. Wednesday to 1-2 Sunday starting Jan. 13 to accommodate relatives who work," Peterson stated.

The sheriff-elect will not appoint a chief deputy but will temporarily appoint (for 6-8 months) two chief investigators.

Roger Dale Ladner

"I didn't want the appointment of a chief deputy to be a political thing. In this way everybody will be on an equal basis and this will give the men the incentive to work toward a goal," Peterson commented.

Peterson plans to enhance the

After secret 'workshop'

Bay port choice still a mystery

By RICH ADAMS

Bay St. Louis Mayor Larry Bennett and city councilmen Friday kept secret proceedings of a so-called "confidential workshop" at City Hall Thursday night in which the council reportedly discussed prospective appointees to the Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission.

Reports that six area men are being considered for the political appointment remained unconfirmed after officials refused comment on the workshop.

Reports indicate the council is con-

County schools hire Randolph as 16th Section land consultant

By RICH ADAMS

The Hancock County School System hired outgoing Superintendent Terrel

HANCOCK'S MAGNIFICENT WILDLIFE—H.G. (Boogie) Dean, an experienced wild bird handler, Wednesday and Thursday night caught these two huge horned owls at his home on US-90 near Pearllington. Dean said the predators had been attacking his chickens. Dean believes the owls to be mates and he hopes to breed them in captivity. The pair, remarkably calm on a visit to the Sea Coast Echo office Friday, would actually "hiss and coo" when placed next to each other. The larger bird weighs some six pounds and sports a wing span of 54 inches. They have visited a veterinarian since their capture, Dean reported. (Staff photo by Edgar Perez)

Randolph as 16th Section Land consultant on a two-year contract during an unannounced meeting Dec. 28, according to school board minutes.

The action was revealed Saturday morning during a recess meeting of the board at the Hancock County Youth Court Center.

Also in Saturday's meeting the board approved the resignation of Gulfview Elementary Principal William Haddock, who was hired by the board at the beginning of the school year.

Superintendent-elect Billy D. Sills said Haddock has been offered a job as assistant principal at Bay St. Louis Junior High School.

The resignation is effective Jan. 31.
Randolph announced he would become involved in a private business venture shortly after deciding not to take further action contesting the August primary runoff election in which Sills bested Randolph by a narrow margin.

At that time, the outgoing superintendent would not reveal what business he would enter, but hinted it would be connected with education.

During reading of school board minutes at Saturday's meeting, Board President Woodrow Ladner said that Randolph had been hired as 16th Section Land consultant at the Dec. 28 meeting.

Sills said Randolph will be taking over the land management duties of outgoing Transportation-16th Section Land Supervisor Mike Necaise, who will be inaugurated as Hancock County Chancery Court clerk Monday.

No replacement for Necaise in the school system has been made yet, Sills added Saturday.

Concerning Haddock's resignation, the board decided to allow the first-year principal to resign at the end of the month.

The board took the resignation under advisement last meeting when Randolph said the principal had withdrawn his resignation.

Sills had indicated he would be happy to have Haddock fulfill his one-year contract with the district.

Saturday, Sills said he will honor the resignation since the issue involves Haddock's advancement in education.
"Since this involves his (Haddock's) advancement, I don't believe we should hold him back," Sills told the board Saturday.

"But if we let him go today, that would only give me half of today and all of Sunday to find a replacement for him at 8 a.m. Monday morning," he continued.

"Mondy is shot because of the inauguration. I think we should make his resignation effective the end of the month. That way I have three weeks to find a replacement," Sills told the board.

"If the other school wants him, it will hold the job for him," he added.

On a motion by Monvel Cuevas, seconded by Oris Ladner, the board

No nukes in ammo plant

By RICH ADAMS

A spokesman for the Mississippi Army Ammunition Plant, currently under construction at National Space Technology Laboratories in Hancock County, said Friday no nuclear or chemical ammunition will be produced at that plant.

Colonel Robert Bowers said ammunition will be produced for the 155-millimeter Howitzer at the unique $400 million complex, the only plant of its type in the nation, but added only conventional ammunition will be turned out at the NSTL location.

That 155 millimeter weapon, however, is capable of firing nuclear and chemical charges in addition to conventional ammunition, Bowers confirmed.

"We will be producing an improved conventional shell containing 88 sub-miniature grenades. At a predetermined point above the target the charge will explode, scattering the grenades over an area the size of a football stadium," Bowers said Friday.
"This is an anti-personnel weapon," the colonel continued.

"The 155 has nuclear and chemical capabilities, but that ammunition will not be made here. Today I can say it will not be produced here, and I am positive it will not be produced here in the future," Bowers explained.

"Production of nuclear and chemical ammunition requires a totally different set-up than what is being constructed at NSTL, and we would get into all kinds of problems if we produced that ammunition here," he added.
The ammunition plant is slated for completion in 1983.

MOVIE THEATER PICKETS—Three pastors, a public official and several congregation members Friday night picketed the Star Theater on the beachfront at Washington Street in Bay St. Louis where a film entitled "Peeping Tom" was slated to be shown at 8 p.m. The pickets, who promised to return Saturday night, were apparently effective Friday in keeping customers away. Only two or three patrons were in the theater at showtime. Theater owner Kelvin Schultz, who has filed a $750,000 federal damage suit against the city, mayor, chief of police and police officers in connection with an earlier incident involving the alleged showing of an R-rated film to minors, said this weekend's feature is rated PG (parental guidance). Schultz said he could make no further comment on the incident.

Secret meeting.....

Cure for reappointment to that post. Also apparently under consideration are J.D. McCullough, Jack Garriga, J.D. (Big John) Rutherford, Ronnie Murray, and Anthony Loiacano.

McCullough, superintendent of Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate Schools, is currently president of the port commission.

He will vacate that office with the inauguration Monday of District Three Supervisor-elect Roger Dale Ladner, who last week named Victor Frankiewicz Jr. as his appointee to the commission.

Rutherford is the outgoing two-term Hancock County Chancery Clerk who was defeated in primary elections by Mike Necaise.

Murray is a federal program coordinator for Gulf Regional Planning Commission.

Loiacano owns Anthony's Men's Store in Bay St. Louis, and Garriga is a retired Coast Electric employee.

Mayor Bennett said Friday actions taken during the Thursday secret meetings are "confidential" and added he would not comment further on the matter.

"The meeting was supposed to be confidential, and we reached no decision," Bennett said.

"I am not at liberty to divulge any information from that meeting," the mayor added.

Councilman James Thriffley said the six names "are inaccurate," adding

"everybody has his favorite." "Everybody has his own favorite, and we cannot reach an agreement in one sitting," Thriffley said Friday.

"Before the final analysis, I am sure there will be 11 or 12 people under consideration for the post," the former council president added.

Council President Peter Benvenuti said the council did not discuss anyone for the position at the Thursday workshop.

"We did not discuss anybody. Any names will have to come from the mayor," Benvenuti said.

Councilman Fred Wagner said Friday night he is not supporting anybody.

"I don't support anyone. The appointment is made by the mayor. When the council and mayor feel comfortable with a decision, the appointment will be made," Wagner said.

When presented with the list of reported prospects for the post, Wagner refused comment.

Councilman Harry Farve said the list is inaccurate, adding a decision is up to the mayor.

"That list is inaccurate; names will have to come from the mayor, he makes the decision," Farve said.

Councilman Wilmer Seymour was not available Friday for comment on the matter.

Rutherford was in Jackson Friday and could not be reached for comment. McCullough was in conference under advice of his attorneys. Police Chief Douglas Williams said he and members of his department were outside the theater Friday to insure "this demonstration or whatever it is will take place peacefully." Among those on the Friday picket line are, from left, James Ginn, Hancock Bank official, member of the Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School Board, and a trustee of the First Assembly of God in Waveland; Rev. Charles Clark, First Assembly pastor; and W. L. Adam, First Assembly member. Other pastors on the picket line included Rev. John F. Foy of First Presbyterian, Bay St. Louis, and Doug Lowrance, Church of Christ, Bay St. Louis. (Staff photo by Edgar Perez).

Friday afternoon and could not be reached for comment.

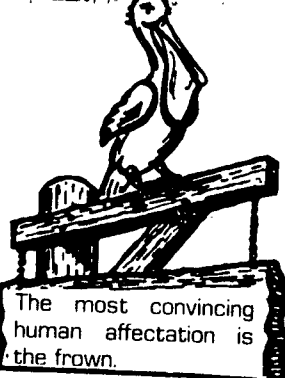

Cure also could not be reached for comment Friday.

All supervisors, with the exception of Ladner, have reappointed their representatives to the port commission.

Last week Waveland Mayor John Longo Jr. announced his reappointment of James DeBlanc to the commission. His recommendation was approved by Waveland aldermen at a New Year's Night meeting.

The City of Bay St. Louis' appointment to the port commission remains the only one yet to be made.

capabilities of new deputies (who have less than five years experience) by enrolling them in the eight week course offered by the Mississippi Law Enforcement Officers Training Academy in Jackson.

"We are also in dire need of two more vehicles," the sheriff-elect added.

Peterson, 35, a veteran of the Vietnam conflict, served in the sheriff's department as chief deputy, investigator and narcotics investigator during the last eight years.

He is a native of Bay St. Louis where he graduated from Bay Senior High School and attended Pearl River Junior College in Poplarville for two years.

Peterson attended the Mississippi Law Enforcement Academy in Jackson, graduated from the University of Mississippi Law Enforcement Seminar and has attended numerous local and statewide law enforcement seminars.

He served four years in the Marine Corps, and is a member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in Kiln and the American Legion in Bay St. Louis.

Peterson and his wife, Darlene, have two children and reside in Bay St. Louis.

BEAT THREE ROADS

Beat Three Supervisor-elect Roger Dale Ladner lists roads among his top priorities and said, "In my beat we have some dirt roads in deplorable condition that need immediate attention."

"I would like to build a baseball field in the Necaise Crossing area. The present field in that area has deteriorated to such an extent that it will have to be completely rebuilt," Ladner explained.

"The dump in District Three, supposedly a land fill, is in terrible condition. I want to bring this dump up to proper sanitary standards," Ladner stated.

The supervisor-elect said the dump is located on 16th Section land east of Hancock North Central High School in Bay St. Louis.

"I'm looking forward to working with the other supervisors in obtaining funds for a new jail. I will work with my fellow supervisors to secure funds for other worthwhile county projects and help, in any way I can, to solve problems that my arise during my administration," Ladner added.

Roger Dale Ladner is a resident of the Dedeaux Community and a native of the Standard Community.

He held the office of Beat Three Justice Court Judge from 1972-1976 and was an unsuccessful candidate for Beat Three Supervisor four years ago.

Ladner graduated from Hancock North Central High School and now owns and operates Dedeaux Community Grocery.

He is married to the former Margaret Alexander of Poplarville and they have two sons.

SCHOOL IMPROVEMENTS

County School Superintendent-elect Billy D. Sills said, "I look forward to a good year and a good four years working with the school board and our county citizens to improve our schools."

"I would like to see a better public relations effort bringing the county school system and Hancock County residents more in tune with each other to meet our area's growing educational needs," Sills stated.

"A vocational-educational program and a full service special education program would be a positive step in meeting Hancock County's education needs," Sills added.

"Generally, I want to work to develop a better school system. We can have one of the best school systems in the state if our citizens and school board work together towards that goal," Sills said.

Billy D. Sills, 44, of Kiln, ran unsuccessfully for superintendent of education in two previous elections.

For the last nine years he was principal of North Bay Elementary School in Bay St. Louis.

Sills earned a bachelor of science degree from Mississippi College in 1968, a masters degree in school administration and guidance from Mississippi College in 1965 and a specialist degree in school administration and guidance in 1972 from the University of Southern Mississippi.

He was basketball coach at Boguchitto School in Lincoln County for two years, basketball coach and teacher at Hancock North Central for three years and held various positions with the Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School District for 16 years.

JOB SECURITY

Chancery Clerk-elect Mike Necaise plans to keep the present staff in the chancery clerk's office adding, "It is in the best interest of the county to keep the present staff."

"I know these people are experienced because I've worked with them a lot and they do a fine job," Necaise said.

"I won't let political differences stand in the way of the county's progress and it is in the best interest of all the people in Hancock County to retain the present staff," Necaise stated.

The chancery clerk-elect said he would not make changes just to make changes but, will be looking for money saving methods.

Necaise cited, "I will try to simplify the 93 accounts of the county. I know that Harrison County has consolidated these into about three accounts and I will see what can be done along these lines."

"With the board's approval I would like to look into the possibility of obtaining more vault space for county records, microfilming many of the records and computerizing our payroll and records," Necaise explained.

"The present chancery clerk has done an outstanding job for our county and I have nothing but praise for his work," Necaise said.

"I'm just ready to go to work and looking forward to the betterment of Hancock County," Necaise added.

Mike Necaise, 30, is a native of Hancock County and served as administrator in the Hancock County School System.

He was a teacher and basketball coach at Bay Senior High School for six years.

Necaise graduated from Bay High in 1967 where he was known for his outstanding basketball abilities.

From William Carey College he received his bachelor of science degree in 1971; a master's degree in physical education in 1973; and a master's degree in administration in 1976.

Necaise and his wife, JoEllen, reside in Bay St. Louis with their two sons.

NEW JUDGES

District Four's new Justice Court judge will be Bruce Necaise of Bay St. Louis.

John Chevis Jr. of Bay St. Louis is Justice Court judge-elect in District Five.

Gerald Tomasich of Bay St. Louis will be sworn in Monday as District Four's new constable.

High school art awards deadline is Jan. 26

Talented art students in Mississippi high schools will have an opportunity to win honors for themselves and their schools by participating in the 1980 Scholastic Art Awards, sponsored regionally by McRae's Department Stores in cooperation with the Mississippi Museum of Art and Scholastic Magazines, Inc.

McRae's will receive the Gold achievement keys and certificates of merit will be the honors at the regional exhibition. After the regional show, the best entries selected from the key-winning pieces as "blue ribbon," finalists will go to national headquarters at Scholastic Magazines, Inc. There the exhibits will be judged along with finalists from other regions for the National Exhibition.

National juries of distinguished artists and educators will select winners of national awards, including about 400 gold medals mounted on plaques with winner's name engraved, 85 scholarships to art schools and colleges, and 600 honorable mention certificates. There will also be about 37 Hallmark Honor Prizes of $100 each for the best painting or drawing from each region.

In addition, the photography division offers 250 cash awards in black-and-white and color photography, as well as three scholarships. Also, a Kodak Medallion of Excellence is offered for the best photography entry from each sponsored region.

Editorial

Legislature to see golden opportunity

During the 1980 Legislature which opens Tuesday, Mississippi lawmakers will have an opportunity to make great strides in opening up state and local government.

Legislation that will be introduced by Representative Dennis Dollar of Gulfport and Senator Ed Ellington of Jackson would, if passed, provide citizens with unprecedented access to their government.

The proposals would enact a statewide public records law and make major changes in the state's open meetings law.

PUBLIC RECORDS

Mississippi is the only state in the country without a general law setting out the fundamental principle that the records of governmental agencies are the property of the citizens and are thus open to inspection by those citizens.

Citizens are presently at the mercy of most public bodies in trying to obtain information from them about their activities.

And the absence of a statewide, uniform public records law provides citizens with no legal recourse or procedure to follow if the agency refuses to release the records. Because there are no guidelines in Mississippi law dealing with the question of public records, the courts can take no action to force an agency to disclose the information.

The proposals by Rep. Dollar and Sen. Ellington are written to provide standard procedures for reasonable citizen access to government records, while protecting the secrecy of certain records in the interest of the general public.

An acceptable public records law should include the following basic provisions:

- A section would define precisely what are public records and enact the right of citizens to have access to any such records.

- Coverage of the law would extend to all state, county, and municipal executive, legislative, and judicial public bodies.

- A section would specify those records that would be exempted from the law (e.g., matters of personal privacy, law enforcement materials, attorney-client records, state income tax returns, trade secrets).

- Courts would be given broad civil sanctions to be used in enforcing the law. The state Attorney General would be given the primary enforcement authority for the law and would determine initially if a disputed record should be released. The Attorney General would have the power to force the public body to release the information. Any citizen could also go to court individually to require compliance with the law.

- A clear, specified procedure for producing records from public bodies would be outlined in the law. Timetables for making a request for records, receiving a response, notifying the Attorney General, and filing a suit would be established.

OPEN MEETINGS

Mississippi's open meetings law was passed by the Legislature in 1975. It sets out the basic principle that all meetings of public bodies should be open to the public.

But it contains many provisions that need to be clarified and strengthened in order to ensure complete public access.

Because parts of the law are vague or are left to the discretion of the public body to implement, many city councils, county board of supervisors, school boards, and state commissions have been able to restrict citizen participation in their meetings.

The amendments to be offered by Rep. Dollar and Sen. Ellington would make the following changes:

- Procedure for enforcing the law would be strengthened and would be set out in detail; the state Attorney General and county prosecuting attorneys would be given the authority to enforce the law. Citizens would also have the power to go individually to court to require compliance. The law would contain no criminal penalties, but would provide for tough civil sanctions to be used in enforcement proceedings. Courts would be given the authority to void any action taken at any illegal meeting.

- Twenty-four hour advance notice of all meetings, except for emergencies, would be required. Under the present law, no uniform, statewide notice requirements are provided for; each public body is given wide latitude in setting their own.

- Specific reasons would be set out in the law for which public bodies could go behind closed doors (e.g., personnel problems, investigative proceedings, litigation and collective bargaining, security discussions, land sales), for all other circumstances, the public body would have to remain in open session. Further, no final action would be allowed to take place in closed session. Under present law, a public body may enter into a closed session, for any reason, provided three-fifths of the members vote to do so.

WHY OPENNESS?

Secrecy breeds mistrust in government. If citizens are to understand and have confidence in government, they must be allowed to scrutinize the processes by which governmental decisions are made.

Refusal of records or access to a meeting will only engender a breach of confidence in the work of an agency in particular and of government in general.

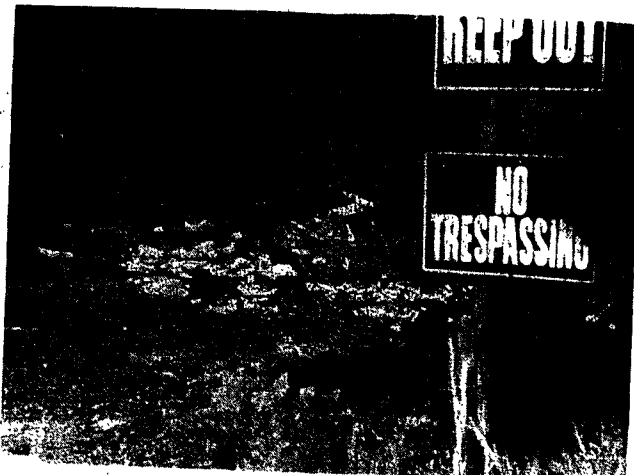

But proposals for openness are generally met with cries of hysteria from those who have grown comfortable with secrecy and with being unaccountable to their constituents.

The experience in other states, however, proves that openness works. Exchange of ideas has not been sacrificed, instead most public officials now agree that open discussions are of a higher calibre.

Other benefits cited by officials include higher attendance at meetings, increased participation by members, and wider media coverage.

Public officials who conduct business in the open know that it can work and that it is the only way to produce credible decisions. But there are still some who refuse to discard secrecy and who use the woefully weak open meetings law and the absence of any public records statute as a curtain to hide behind.

By passing strong open government proposals, the Legislature will remove that curtain and force those reluctant officials to respond to their constituents and to conduct the public's business where it belongs—in the open.

US-90 LAND FILLS IN BAY ST. LOUIS?—In three locations on the north side of US-90 between Dunbar Avenue and Second Street are areas where extensive dumping of garbage, furniture and appliances has taken place. Top and middle photographs show two relatively small dump sites in relation to a larger dump area, bottom, in which garbage and appliances apparently have been pushed into the woods. Bay St. Louis apparently has ordinances preventing dumping of this type, but some folks are probably not aware of them. If we are to appear civilized to potential investors and tourists, we should at least make a good impression along the highway leading into Bay St. Louis. These dumping areas are located about a half block from where a fireworks stand was recently evicted by the city because of the illegality and unsightliness of trailers housing that operation. We feel the spirit of that move should apply in the entire highway area; we feel something should now be done to put a stop to this illegal dumping.

Health and Safety Tip Give Body To Others

The human body is a storehouse of human tissue valuable for transplantation, medical education, research and therapy. A person willing to donate all or part of his body after death for one of these purposes is making a generous contribution to society.

The American Medical Association frequently is asked: "How can I leave my body to help others?"

Actually, it isn't difficult. The Uniform Anatomical Gift Act now adopted by all 50 states and the District of Columbia provides that any person 18 or over may donate all or part of his body after death for research, transplantation or placement in a tissue bank. The donor's wish may be expressed in a written document, often incorporated into his will. His intent should be made known to friends and relatives who will make certain that his wishes are carried out.

Many individuals carry in wallet or purse a small card which states that the bearer wishes to make an anatomical gift after death. The donation is effective only after death. And the doctor who will handle the donated organ cannot be the one who pronounces death. No money can be exchanged in making an anatomical donation. Expenses for funeral arrangements and care of the body after removal of tissues and organs are the responsibility of the donor and his family.

Organs and/or bodies are accepted on a need basis. No medical facility is obliged to accept an offered gift. There may be periods in which the local medical school actually has a surplus of bodies for anatomy studies. And at other times there may be an acute shortage.

Kidneys are routinely transplanted in more than 2,000 individuals each year and more could be used if they were available. Corneas of the eye may be transplanted to restore sight in many persons. Many structural tissues, including bone, tendons, heart valves, fibrous tissues that cover the muscles, and cartilage have been transplanted with success. These tissues can be stored until needed.

MISSISSIPPI ECONOMIC COUNCIL
THE STATE
CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

The president of the Mississippi Economic Council said this week that statewide reappraisal of property for ad valorem tax purposes will be an important issue in the 1980 Legislature, but urged lawmakers to reject any method of classification of property for tax purposes.

"Classification," said MEC President Benton Cuain, a Jackson businessman, "means categorizing property according to its use, ownership, or other factor, and assessing that category of property at a different percent of appraised value from other categories because of that use or ownership."

He explained that if classification were adopted, it would give a property tax advantage to one segment of the economy at the expense of another and escalate inequities, shifting the burden of taxation to another segment of society—usually to business property—which would result in increased prices on goods and services, and place continuous pressure on the Legislature to give additional preferential treatment to the politically strong.

"We have seen what classification of property for tax purposes has done to the tax systems of other states," Cuain said. "Minnesota and our neighbor to the north, Tennessee, have both enacted classification, and public outcry has been heard in both states against this system for which there is no economic justification."

A task force formed by Tennessee's Governor Lamar Alexander—who has pledged to develop his state's economy and raise family income—has identified a wall of taxes as a barrier to economic growth. Specifically, the heavy tax burden which falls on business and industry.

"When our northern neighbors approved classification, they thought they were getting tax relief," said Cuain. "Instead they were casting an anti-business shadow over their economic future."

Minnesota's state auditor, a former tax commissioner, has criticized classification, saying:

—It erodes the property tax base so that the effect of rising values is nullified;

—Classification has caused Minnesota's property tax rate to be even higher than it should be and placed the state's tax rates above other states;

—It shifts the burden of taxation every time a new class is created so that the taxes of every property owner are affected without his knowledge; and

—Once classification is enacted, there is no place to stop.

Bits-N-Pieces

By Ellis Cuevas

There is another sports craze invading the Gulf Coast. It seems to be the next 'in thing' for our youth which is very good.

The sport we are talking about is soccer, it has been around for many years but not in our area.

It is good to see so many of our youth interested in playing this highly competitive game.

We wish the Soccer League success this year, and hope there will be twice as many interested persons as there have been in the recent years.

Well, tomorrow is the big day in Hancock County when all of our political leaders will be sworn into office.

Many hard-fought battles to be re-elected or elected, as the old saying goes, provided us with a long hot summer.

Some officials had to do battle at the polls three times in order to represent the people of Hancock County in their respective offices.

We would like to congratulate the many re-elected officials as well as the new office holders and wish them success for the next four years.

We realize there were many who sought office and were not elected, but there can be only one winner in each race.

The 1979 elections saw more qualified candidates in Hancock County than we have ever noticed before, so we are sure many of those not elected could have also done a super job.

We hope the bitter feeling between seekers for the offices will cease and everyone will work together for a better Hancock County.

We must remember, there will be an election again in 1983 and that will be the time to try and replace those you do not agree with in the way they do things.

If those on the outside try to continually fight those on the inside, nothing really good can be accomplished.

Together, Hancock County can be made a model county in the State of Mississippi.

P.S. The swearing in is scheduled for 9 a.m. Monday, January 7, 1980, Hancock County Courthouse.

During the past several days, we have all received the grim reminders of things which will be due on April 15th.

Of course we are commenting on the Federal and State Income Tax forms. We cannot criticize either the Federal or State Tax people for being delinquent in our getting the forms on time.

We are guilty like most of you for waiting for the last minute to file our tax forms each year.

It would probably be a good idea if all of us could get our materials together a little early this year and not have to make the last minute rush-as in years before.

Like we have heard so many times, there are two things in living for sure, a person must pay taxes and he must also die.

Some may get out of some taxes, but don't believe them, because everytime you purchase something there is a certain percentage for taxes.

As for dying, well we haven't heard of anyone who hasn't faced that ordeal since the Son of God.

Congratulations to Alfred and Buella Ladner, Kiln for being the parents of the first baby born in Hancock General Hospital for 1980.

Their daughter Michel Lynn was born on Thursday, Jan. 3. Again thanks to the Bay St. Louis Jaycees and the merchants who made it a very special occasion for the new arrival.

College trustees deny service duplication

The State College Board will not support the Methodist Rehabilitation Center in its Certificate of Need to add additional beds and operating room facilities at the Rehabilitation Center adjacent to the University of Mississippi Medical Center.

Action came at the December meeting of the College Board, upon recommendation by the Board's Medical Affairs Committee.

According to Medical Affairs chairman for the College Board, Dr. Rupert Lovelace, the Methodist Rehabilitation Center requested that the Board give support to its Certificate of Need to expand the Center by adding more beds and operating room facilities.

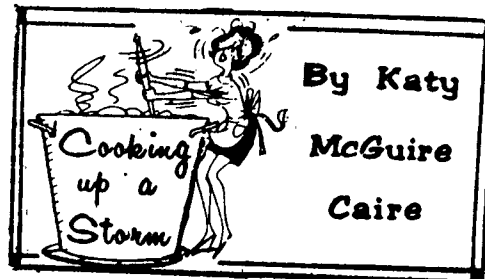

ilities.

"We are not opposed to the expansion of the Rehabilitation Center, but we are opposed to adding operating room facilities, which are available at the University Medical Center," Lovelace said.

The addition of operating room facilities would place the Center in a position to meet acute service needs such as emergency room and other services.

Lovelace pointed to the $12,600,000 Acute Services Wing of the Medical Center, which is currently under construction and said that the addition of these same facilities at the Rehabilitation Center would be a duplication of services.

Now that the holiday feasting is over, doesn't your palate crave somewhat more simple, sturdy fare for a few days?

Mine does - and what's more basic and down to earth than a steaming bowl of bean soup?

Bean soup is a tradition of long-standing in our nation's capital, appearing on the menu of the Senate and House restaurants day in, day out, rain, shine or what have you.

It was so decreed many years ago, so I was told, just after the turn of the century, when then Speaker of the House, Joseph C. Cannon of Illinois, had his mouth "all set" for a bountiful bowl of the bean soup, only to find that none had been made that hot summer day in the House restaurant.

He is said to have thundered quite a bit about it, with the consequence that bean soup was ordered to be a regular daily item on the menu, and in short order was added, in a slightly different version, to the Senate Restaurant menu, to save off our lawmakers' hunger. Here's

SENATE BEAN SOUP
1 lb. dry white navy beans
1 ham bone - please, with some meat still on 3 medium onions, chopped
2 garlic cloves, minced
2 celery ribs, chopped
Salt and pepper to your taste.
Cover the beans with water and let them soak overnight, then drain and toss into your soup kettle or other heavy pot with about two quarts or so of water and the ham bone (or ham hocks).

Bring to a fast boil, then turn down the heat and simmer for at least two hours in the pot (covered, of course) adding water as needed. Stir in the onions, garlic and celery and simmer awhile more, or until the beans are tender.

If you prefer a thinner soup, add more water - we like ours more solid, and I also like a splash of hot pepper sauce on mine.

P.S. This will serve four to six - not the whole Senate! (Copyright, 1980, Katharine D. M. Caire)

FSU student circus to perform at USM

The Flying High Circus from Florida State University will perform at the University of Southern Mississippi in Hattiesburg Saturday, Jan. 19.

The circus, celebrating its 32nd anniversary, is composed of some 75 FSU students who perform aerial and stage acts. High wire, trapeeze, skating, juggling and clown acts are featured in the family oriented performance.

The FXU troupe is an extracurricular self-supporting operation which travels across the southeastern states each year playing to capacity audiences.

Millions have enjoyed the circus on television programs such as the CBS "Sports Spectacular," Charles Kuralt's "On the Road" and the ABC "Wide World of Sports."

The USM performance is sponsored by the Department of Intramural and Recreational Sports and will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Reed Green Coliseum.

Tickets are available at the Department of Intramurals and Recreational Sports Office and at the door prior to the performance.

Book Review

by
Ms. Joe Pilet

About a dozen years ago - February 12, 1968 to be exact, one of our native sons, Dale Greenwell documented the history of the Mississippi Coast.

He called his book 'Twelve Flags: Triumphs and Tragedies.'

Drawing from such sources as the Louisiana State Museum Library and Mississippi Prov. Archives, the author compiled invaluable lists for those who wish to trace their lineage.

Chapter 19 deals with Old Families and gives early spelling of names, i.e. Le Fevre or Le Fevre became Favre; Morin, Morant, became Moran; Saussier, Socie became Saucier, and so on.

In Chapter 17 there is an interesting list of concessions given to the wealthy in France. The concession of Mr. John Law, creator of Mississippi's Bubble, was listed on the Arkansas River and Mississippi, and there was a concession granted Mr. de Mezieres about 222 miles above New Orleans. In all 12 concessions are listed.

Valuable old maps include the flag of West Florida. (The 31st parallel separated the coast counties Pearl River, Hancock, Harrison, Stone, George and Jackson, from the Mississippi Territory until 1810).

This valuable reference book may be found in the Mississippi section of our City-County Public Library. Read it. You'll be amazed.

NATCHEZ TOUR

The word bonanza, according to Webster's Dictionary, means a very rich vein, or a source of wealth.

Bonanza Books, a division of Crown Publishers, Inc. certainly gave us a bonanza when Natchez On The Mississippi by Harnett T. Kane rolled from their presses several years ago.

Harnett Kane, ever a master storyteller, gave us an immortal. It will live so long as there is a spring pilgrimage in Natchez. To get the most from the tour of plantation homes, as well as the city of Natchez itself a review of this book is "required reading." His character descriptions are excellent.

His history is accurate. There is no excess of words and a sort of rhythm in his sentences that makes reading a pleasure. The tone is conversational. Illustrations are excellent. There's a good close up of 'Devereux' ironwork; of Lansdowne's furnishings, of the "Goat Castle," and of the incomparable Rosalie.

As a bit of lagniappe turn to page 237 for a description of Varina Howell. And not to be skipped over lightly is references made to Beauvoir (see page 257). Our own Mississippi Gulfcoast has ever been closely associated with Natchez.

Wealthy planters from the Natchez plantations spent much time and many built resort homes in this area thus establishing the rapport that exists between our two areas.

Natchez On The Mississippi should you not have it in your home library - find it at your City-County Public Library.

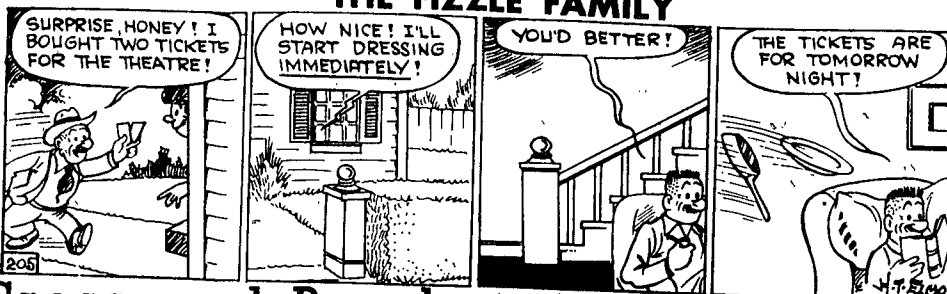

EARLY MAPS AVAILABLE

Reproductions of old Mississippi maps showing early settlements, forts and other features of historical interest are available from Gold Bug Publishers, Post Office Box 588, Alamo, California 94507.

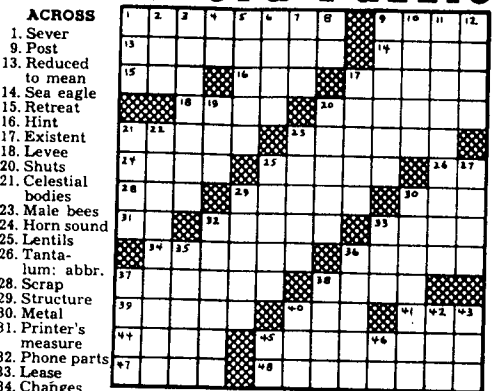

Included in the collection are some of the earliest charts of the U.S. Geological Survey and other sheets dating back to the first explorations of the territory.

A catalog listing the items currently available may be obtained by writing to the publisher.

Gregory Peck's role as Dr. Josef Mengele in The Boys From Brazil belies his past of largely noble roles, including that of Atticus Finch in To Kill a Mockingbird. "I suppose for years producers have seen me as the useful type," Peck told The Washington Star. "Someone has to play the hero and forward the plot and handle the exposition. I've watched fellows come in and do flamboyant things like go mad or pitch fits, and I very often envied them. Those are good roles. And now it's time for me to play character roles. I don't want to play anything but my own age. I can't be and I don't want to be the dashing hero anymore."

When the other kids played with dolls,

Sally Field would go into her room and act. "I was very reclusive and always highly emotional," she remembers. "I didn't feel I was allowed to express it, so I would cry and scream in front of the mirror and be very sexy. Acting was the place where I could be me." Lately, the "me" that Sally has taken a definite turn for the better, image-wise, with roles in Smokey and the Bandit, The End, Hooper, Norma Rae, and Beyond the Poseidon Adventure, which is featured on Home Box Office this month.

Recently, Tony Curtis ran across an old roommate from his early days in Hollywood. "You're allowed one reminiscence," said Curtis. "I'll tell you what I remember," said his friend. "Going to Palm Springs in your old Buick and winding up with lots of girls. There was one I really liked — and you took her away from me." Curtis grinned at the memory. "That really made me smile. After all, I must be one of the few fellows who ever took a girl away from Marlon Brando."

Henry Winkler, known to all as "The Fonzie" and star of Hill Street Blues and The One and Only, was supposed to follow in his father's footsteps: Do well in school and take over the family lumber business. His decision to become an actor triggered a family fuss. "My father and I re-created all the great wars of history," he said. "My mother was more subtle. She'd fix breakfast for me — eggs, toast and guilt."

Sean Connery certainly has suffered his share of James Bond cracks. For dealing with the problems of portraying a prototype, Connery gave this good-natured advice to a fellow actor: "(1) Be in Outer Mongolia when they're trying to find you for the sequel. (2) If that doesn't work, I'll give you my lawyer and he'll stick it to them. (3) And you better be damn good in the first one or you won't have that problem."

Peanut Butter Chips Treats That Kids Can Make

Treats that are really easy to make, yet delicious and nutritious, are hard to find. So, if your kids are clamoring to have fun in your kitchen, here are two ideal recipes. Either recipe would be a nutritious snack, especially with a glass of milk, yet nice enough to give away as a gift.

Peanut butter chips, made from partially defatted real peanuts, provide the basis of these recipes. You'll love the convenience of using the chips because they melt easily and blend readily with other ingredients. The chips, which contain no preservatives or artificial peanut flavor, have nutritional value also. One ounce of the chips provides 10% of the recommended daily allowance of protein and niacin.

The No Bake Peanut Butter Chip Cookies are as easy as child's play to make. They have an interesting, textured appearance and a crunchy, hearty character. Those who are "nuts" about peanuts will get a double treat from the luscious taste of Easy Double Peanut Clusters.

NO BAKE PEANUT BUTTER CHIP COOKIES
Melt one 12-ounce package (2 cups) Reese's Peanut Butter Flavored Chips and 1 tablespoon shortening in top of double boiler over hot (not boiling) water; stir until smooth and creamy. Coarsely crush 5 cups of corn flakes; mix with melted chips and 1 cup seedless raisins. Stir until cereal is coated. Drop by teaspoonfuls onto waxed paper-lined tray. Cool until set; store tightly covered. (Makes about 40 cookies.)

EASY DOUBLE PEANUT CLUSTERS
Melt one 12-ounce package (2 cups) Reese's Peanut Butter Flavored Chips and 1 tablespoon shortening in top of double boiler over hot (not boiling) water. Stir until smooth and creamy; mix in 2 cups salted peanuts. Spoon into 1-inch size muffin papers or drop by teaspoonfuls onto waxed paper-covered tray. Cool until set; store tightly covered. (Makes about 48 clusters.)

YOU AND YOUR PET

By Robert L. Stear, D.V.M.
Manager of Veterinary Services
Norden Laboratories

Many reptiles are classified as endangered species. This means their numbers are rapidly declining, and the species may disappear permanently from the earth.

For this reason, I don't encourage clients to keep most snakes, lizards or turtles.

When natural habitats cannot be successfully duplicated, reptiles often refuse to eat and eventually starve.

This removes one or more animal from the already limited breeding pool, and reduces the chances that the species will survive.

Many states strictly enforce laws protecting endangered species and heavily fine collectors who take protected wild animals.

Be aware of the laws in your state before purchasing or capturing an unusual reptile or mammal.

Experienced reptile owners will testify that some animals captured in the wild never resign themselves to living in captivity.

KEEPING REPTILES

I've encountered a number of reptiles during my years of veterinary practice, but I don't ever expect them to become popular household pets.

Turtles, lizards and snakes will probably always remain the odd fellows in the pet shop. Their dry, cool and scaly bodies just don't have the broad appeal of the more playful, warm-blooded pets. If you're considering owning reptiles, however, here are a few thoughts to aid in keeping them healthy.

Providing the proper food and correct temperature for your pet will be your biggest challenges. Many reptiles are carnivorous, preferring only live meat.

Small reptiles, such as collared lizards, want mealworms, earthworms, crickets and grasshoppers. Snakes prefer suckling (newborn) mice and other small rodents, although you might be successful in substituting small chunks of meat that "wiggle" from the end of a broomstick or string.

Some lizards, like the iguana, also need substantial quantities of vegetables, such as lettuce, tomatoes or spinach, and some fruit.

All your efforts in selecting the proper food for your pet will be wasted if you don't also provide the proper temperature.

Reptiles living in the wild use the sun to regulate their body temperature, and to speed up blood circulation and digestion.

Animal kept in terrariums also need a source of warmth.

The standard aquarium hood is equipped with light bulbs which generate enough heat for some lizards; others may need an overhead heat lamp to feel comfortable.

Your public library should have reference books describing the environment suitable for your reptiles.

A major concern for any caged animal is fresh water. Although you will rarely see your reptile actually drinking, there should always be fresh water available.

Evaporation from the water dish also adds moisture to the air, making tropical reptiles feel more comfortable.

Extension Service predicts 1980 farming income decline

"The 1980 farm picture according to U.S. Department of Agriculture economists is fairly gloomy. But, in my opinion farmers in Mississippi should be able to hold their own next year even though their costs will probably be higher," says Dr. W.M. Bost, director, Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

"I may be overly optimistic, but I know Mississippi farmers and what they can do when the going gets tough," Bost adds.

According to USDA economists, cash receipts from farming should increase slightly, possible two to three percent, in 1980. However, production costs will also increase substantially and probably average 10 to 12 percent higher than those of 1979.

The end result would mean a substantial decline in net farm income, but improved practices in areas such as liming, advanced weed control methods and disease control will help combat this decline.

MEAT ANIMALS--The outlook continues strong for cattle, but rather poor for hogs.

Calf prices will remain high and probably average above those of 1979 as cattle feeders compete for the reduced supply of calves. Calf prices increased by almost 50 percent in 1979. Some increase may occur in 1980; however, the increase may be fairly small.

Some rebuilding of herds is occurring and the Jan. 1, 1980, inventory of all cattle and calves should be slightly above the Jan. 1, 1979 level. Production costs will be higher in 1980, but profits should at least equal those of 1979.

Bank official warns

Bogus bills circulating in Hancock County area

By RICH ADAMS

A counterfeit money awareness program is being conducted by Hancock Bank in Bay St. Louis for all law enforcement agencies and merchants following recent discovery of bogus bills circulating in the Hancock County area. James Ginn, vice-president of the US-90 Hancock Bank in Bay St. Louis, said Friday his bank is showing law enforcement officers examples of $50 and $100 dollar counterfeit bills which have been intercepted in this area.

Three instances of customers, either attempting to or successfully passing bogus money have been reported since Thanksgiving, two at Stucky's Restaurant on I-10 in Pass Christian and one at John Mason's Exxon Station in Waveland.

Mason said Friday he spotted a fake $50 bill which a customer tried to give him, and later reported the incident to the Federal Bureau of Investigation. "The guy got $10 worth of gas and tried to pay for it with a $50 bill. His wallet was full of other bills," Mason said Friday.

"I noticed the bill looked funny, with no distinct lines, so I asked him for his driver's license. He said he didn't have a license with him that day, so I wouldn't accept the bill. He paid me with a ten," he continued.

"Later an FBI agent drove in for some gas and I told him about the incident. I had written the license number down, and gave it to the agent," Mason added.

"If I am offered a bill which looks at all suspicious, I will not accept it," he stated.

Stucky's Manager Donnie King said he received both $50 and $100 phony bills.

King said no arrests were made, but explained the $100 bill was given to an attendant by a young white male in a blue car.

Ginn said Friday most counterfeit bills appear to be faded, with no distinct lines on the face which appears on the money.

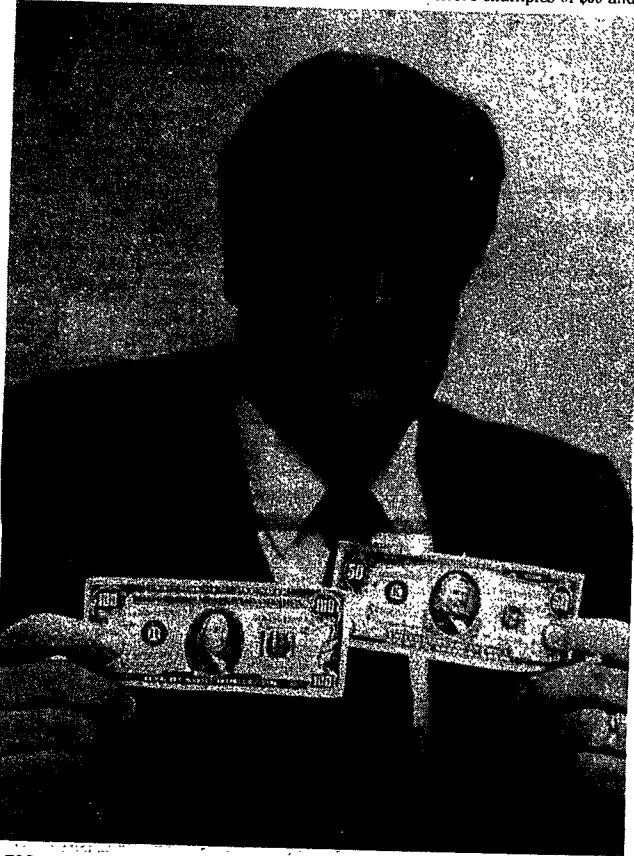

He added that the bogus cash has a different feel to it than real money, and that red fibers are not visible on counterfeit bills when held to a light.

"The main thing is that the bills are faded and have a different feel to them," Ginn said Friday.

The bank official said rubbing a bill on paper to see if the ink comes off is not a method which insures the money is real.

Ginn said with some older authentic bills the ink will not come off on the paper.

"We have notified all area merchants to let them know there is counterfeit money in this area," Ginn said.

Five nabbed in wood theft

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

Five Picayune men were arrested on private property in the National Space Technology Laboratories buffer zone area of Hancock County and charged with timber theft Sunday, Dec. 30, according to Chief Deputy Ronnie Peterson of the Hancock County Sheriff's Department.

The arrest is the second by local authorities in recent weeks involving individuals possessing St. Regis Paper Co. permits to cut firewood on company lands.

"We've been having a lot of problems lately with people going out there (in the NSTL buffer zone area) and cutting firewood where they're not supposed to," Peterson said.

"I think they don't realize exactly where they are suppose to be cutting wood," Peterson stated.

"We feel people to whom we give permits know where they're suppose to cut firewood," said Frank Davis, district forester for St. Regis Paper Co. based in Picayune.

"We designate an area to cut, show them the exact location on a map and they have to tell us they understand exactly where the boundaries are," Davis stated.

"Our property boundaries are clearly marked with orange paint on trees not too far apart... and most of these people we give permits to are local residents, so there's no excuse for them to be wandering off into private property," the forester explained.

"If this problem gets bad enough we may stop giving woodcutting permits altogether, although I would hate to do that because I feel these actions by a few would hurt the majority of people abiding by the law," Davis added.

The County Sheriff's Office received a call from William Thigpen of Picayune requesting the men be arrested for cutting wood on his property near the Texas Flat Road.

Deputy Nathan Hoda and Auxiliary Deputy Tommy Mitchell arrested five men, all members of a Picayune family, and charged them with the theft of some two cords of wood.

They were released on a $500 property bond.

unanimously accepted the resignation.

In other business Saturday, Board President Ladner thanked Randolph for his services as superintendent during the past four years.

The meeting was Randolph's last as superintendent.

"I would personally like to thank you publicly for all the good things you have done for the educational system in Hancock County," Ladner told Randolph.

"Of all the superintendents I have known in the county, I have never known one to give his all to the system as Mr. Randolph has. He has brought more money into the district through his hard work than any other previous superintendent," he continued.

"When we look back at county school conditions, we had a cafeteria for 400 and were feeding 1,200 in it. Today we have one of the most modern food service facilities in the state," Ladner said.

Ladner praised Randolph for adding dressing rooms at elementary schools, and improving conditions at the Hancock, North Central Attendance Center.

The board president also commended Randolph for his work on the transportation system in the schools, noting the superintendent added 14 buses to "The timber theft trial will be heard by Circuit Judge Horatio Priceman at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the County Courthouse," Peterson said.

"If anyone has a permit to cut wood on St. Regis property and doesn't know exactly where our property is, I ask them to please contact our office in Picayune," Davis stated.

Both the Mississippi and the U.S. wheat crops in 1980 are expected to be larger than those produced in 1979. If this occurs, some downward pressure could be placed on prices toward the early summer harvest. It could be a fair profit year for wheat.

However, if prices decline as much as 50 cents per bushel, profits will likely fall in a poor to fair category. FEED CROPS--Feed grain prices in 1980 will average above those of 1979; however, higher production costs probably will offset any gain in prices.

U.S. corn plantings may increase slightly. However, the 1980 U.S. crop likely won't be any larger than the record crop of 1979. The 1979 U.S. corn yields were at an all-time high of 109.2 bushels per acre. Feed grain production in Mississippi next year may not change much from that of 1979.

A slight build-up of corn stocks, plus some weakening of demand in the latter part of 1980, could cause prices to weaken late next year.

Overall, prices for 1980 should average above those of 1979. HORTICULTURAL CROPS--Horticultural crops should enjoy a better year in 1980. Several things happened in 1979 to create a relatively poor year, even though there were some bright spots.

Vegetable crops, pecans and the ornamental horticultural industry should enjoy a better year in 1980. High production costs will hurt, but some improvement should occur. RICE--The rice outlook for 1980 is fair. The record rice crop in 1979 and uncertainty in foreign markets have caused prices to decline in recent weeks. This dampened the outlook for 1980. Some build-up downward pressure on prices.

Rice plantings across the U.S. and Mississippi may not change much in the year ahead. This will cause the 1980 crop to be fairly close to 1979 levels. Unless some improvement occurs in foreign markets, 1980 may be only a poor to fair profit year for farmers. Rice production costs in the year ahead may be up 16 to 18 percent, higher than the 10 to 12 percent expected for other enterprises.

WHEAT--Wheat could enjoy a fair year in 1980, although the expected larger crop could cause prices to decline from current levels. The 1979 crop was a large one, but demand is strong and some decline in stocks during 1979-80 is expected.

Vegetable crops, pecans and the ornamental horticultural industry should enjoy a better year in 1980. High production costs will hurt, but some improvement should occur. MEAT ANIMALS--The outlook continues strong for cattle, but rather poor for hogs. Calf prices will remain high and probably average above those of 1979 as cattle feeders compete for the reduced supply of calves. Calf prices increased by almost 50 percent in 1979. Some increase may occur in 1980; however, the increase may be fairly small.

Some rebuilding of herds is occurring and the Jan. 1, 1980, inventory of all cattle and calves should be slightly above the Jan. 1, 1979 level. Production costs will be higher in 1980, but profits should at least equal those of 1979.

The hog situation remains poor, but some improvements will occur in 1980. Profits will be poor for most of the year. However, with production declines in the second half and price improvements, profits should move back to positive levels.

DAIRY--The outlook for dairying in 1980 remains fair. Milk prices will average higher, although higher production costs may offset expected price increases. Mississippi dairy cow numbers probably will continue to decline while production per cow should reach new highs.

POULTRY AND EGGS--The outlook for broilers in 1980 is not very good. Production and prices will probably decline. Lower prices combined with higher production costs will cause broiler profits in 1980 to be poor.

Egg production should increase again in 1980, but prices may decline slightly. The weaker economy in the next six to nine months could cause demand for eggs to weaken. All of this will cause profit margins to be lower in the year ahead.

CATFISH--The outlook for catfish for 1980 is good. Production will be higher because of an expanded acreage. Catfish prices advanced substantially in 1979, however, prices in 1980 should remain close to those of 1979. The profit situation for catfish should remain good.

FORESTRY--The outlook for forestry in 1980 is fair. Substantial gains were made in 1979; however, the gains in 1980 may be less. The present recession and the decline in housing starts will cause demand for forest products to weaken. If the recession ends in the first half of 1980 and interest rates decline substantially, the demand for timber and timber products could strengthen in the second half of the year and some improvement could occur. Overall, 1980 won't be as good a year as 1979 for the forestry enterprise.

Here's an overview of seven other areas in the 1980s as seen by Dr. Bost. LAND AND WATER--A shortage of water in the western U.S. will cause a major shift in agriculture from west to east in the 1980s. Competition from large cities in the West for available water will cause a gradual movement of agriculture to the Southeast where the water picture is much brighter. Dr. Bost believes the Mississippi Delta could become the "garden spot of the world" because of its abundant water supply. On farms with plenty of water, irrigation will become as common as the tractor.

Conservation tillage, reduction of soil and water pollution and changes in land use will increase on Mississippi and U.S. farms in the 1980s, add Dr. Bost. Farmers will become more involved in programs to clean up streams and lakes to meet the requirements of Section 208 of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act.

High costs of transportation and other economic factors will gradually shift some farming enterprises closer to major population areas in the 1980s. More people will move from rural areas back to cities and towns to cope with these rising costs. Farms nationwide will be used more intensively to produce more food for a growing population, provide more exports and convert plant materials into energy. Crop acreage in Mississippi will increase from doublecropping present cropland, cleared forest land and a possible further reduction of forage crops.

ENERGY--Energy prices will continue to increase in the 1980s with some experts predicting prices to double at the end of the decade. These higher prices will result in more production of energy from sources currently less profitable, including production of alcohol from grain. Dr. Bost says production of alcohol for energy on Mississippi farms will come from crops such as wheat, corn, rice and grain sorghum. Production of alcohol from cellulose fiber offers great potential and may be in use by the late 1980s.

Natural gas supplies will be limited mainly to home use and agricultural production in the 1980s. Use of more abundant coal will expand to produce electricity for industrial use and to manufacture chemicals and gas. Electricity consumption will increase, and sources will begin shifting from petroleum and natural gas to coal and nuclear energy.

TECHNOLOGY--Increased use of pest management programs and computers will be key technological improvements in agriculture in the 1980s, Dr. Bost predicts. Pest management programs are already used on cotton and soybeans in Mississippi and will expand to other agricultural enterprises. An entire farm may be on a pest management program because it requires fewer chemicals, saves energy and produces more profit.

Most agricultural states will have their own computer networks by the end of the 1980s. Some farmers will have their own terminals or they may use a small computer at the county agent's office. Computers will help farmers with such problems as enterprise combinations, investments alternatives and production efficiency. Farmers may also have access to "electric marketing," a system where commodities can be bought or sold through a computer terminal.

INFLATION--This will be one of the major problems Mississippi farmers will face in the 1980s. Inflation will probably average about 10 percent in early 1980. Dr. Bost explains that unanticipated inflation affects agriculture quicker because most commodities are produced only once a year and resource adjustments cannot be made as quickly as in other sectors of the economy. A decline in the growth rate of money, which usually determines the long-term rate of inflation, in early 1980 should bring down the rate of inflation.

MARKETING--The food service industry, a growing market for agricultural products, will increase its share of the food dollar in the 1980s, forecasts the extension director. This will result from an increase in the number of working housewives, rapid growth of the industry itself and an increase in real income in the U.S. Fast food chains will set up cattle buying stations, feedlots and processing plants.

Agricultural exports will increase in the 1980s to help offset U.S. dependence on foreign trade. In 1979, agricultural exports reached a record $15 billion more than agricultural imports, for a total of $32 billion. Projections for 1980 are for agricultural exports to increase to almost $40 billion.

FARM PROGRAMS AND REGULATIONS--Farmers can expect farm programs in the 1980s similar to those of the late 1970s using the target price concept and shifting away from allotments. Dr. Bost says farmers will have more freedom to plant crops and acreage they choose, with less emphasis on set-aside and diversion programs. Programs will emphasize producing and exporting as much as possible.

Federal regulations, mainly minimum wage, OSHA and EPA will continue to affect agriculture in the 1980s. OSHA and EPA regulations may have a greater impact on agriculture in the next decade than any other single area of influence.

FARM CREDIT--The 1980s will see large increases in the use of farm credit, according to Dr. Bost. Adequate credit will be available at interest rates probably lower than those in 1979. Sellers, bankers and insurance companies will remain important sources of credit. More farmers will join others to spread out the high cost of equipment and other farm inputs. Farmers will expand their operations by buying more land or arranging partnership agreements with neighbors who are retiring. More family members will hold their interests in farming rather than sell to a family member to keep large acreage together and provide a capital flow.

Hancock County's newest Boy Scout organization is St. Stanislaus' Troop 86 in Bay St. Louis.

"Brother Kenny Dwight S.C. serves as scoutmaster. He is one of the most qualified young scoutmasters in our council or in any other council," says Jim Groce, district executive, New Orleans area council of the Boy Scouts of America. Troop 86 recently hiked down several trails in Desoto National Park in Harrison County near Saucier.

"We took two Saturdays making one five mile hike one day and a six mile hike the following Saturday," said Brother Timothy Casey, assistant scoutmaster.

"The boys learn certain skills, on these outings, which earn them credits toward passing certain requirements for various scout badges," Brother Timothy explained. "We try to have a hike or camping trip each month," Brother Timothy added.

"Brother Dwight is an Eagle Scout, a vigil member of the Order of the Arrow, Camp Salomon staff member for six years, a former assistant scoutmaster of Troop 80 in New Orleans and holds the Woodbadge recognition—scouting's most advanced leadership training," Groce explained. "We look for an outstanding Scout program at St. Stanislaus," Groce added.

PACKING IT—St. Stanislaus' Wolverine Patrol of Troop 86 discusses backpacking techniques. Participating in an explanation of equipment are Danny Dennison, Richard Del Bono, an unidentified scout and Joe Sala. The backpacking class was part of a recent hiking exercise in Desoto National Park near Saucier.

MEN WANTED! Does such a statement in any way excite or challenge some deeper and richer quality within you? The business community is constantly searching for men who will fill certain places in the professions and labor force which require a desire to serve; a willingness to be productive; and a readiness to learn.

Christ was calling for such men who would accept the challenge to follow him as "Ambassadors for Christ" in serving a most important place in human lives—the filling of their spiritual, moral and material needs for time and eternity.

"Follow me," cried the Master, "and I will make you fishers of men."—Matt. 4:19. This was our Saviour's way of saying, "Men wanted!"

The five most wanted men I can think of in our day are:

(1) The man who is ready to put God's business above his or any other business.

When only twelve years of age, Jesus said: "Wist ye not that I must be about my Father's business?"

The man who will promptly and properly attend to God's business can be sure that God will attend to his. Let me leave you an interesting proof text: Read Joshua 1:1-9. Here God laid down some simple conditions, that when complied with, "thou shalt make thy way prosperous, and then thou shalt have good success."

(2) The man who brings his family to the services of the church rather than sending them.

(3) The man who is willing to be the right example to his family, his neighbor, and to every boy and girl he meets.

An ounce of example is worth a ton of advice. If you want others to see what Christ can do for them, let them see what He has done for you;

(4) The man who is more concerned about winning the approbation of God, and winning others to Christ than in winning a golf tournament, a bowling trophy, or some other worldly acclaim;

Not an easy role

Q. I am newly married with 14-year-old twins girls added to my life. They have not had any decent home life or discipline in many years and don't show any respect for others. There is no respect for authority.

How can I get them to cooperate? "Can you help me handle my new role as wife and stepmother? I want to show them God and love and real family happiness."

A. The best way to be an enthusiastic, radiant, outgoing woman. Underscore woman and play down the mother image.

Go all out to make your home life interesting and be as companionable as possible with the girls in a normal, natural way.

Don't try to establish a "we three girls" relationship, for that can be foolish. Just be a genuine good friend to the girls.

The discipline that comes from real liking is much stronger than authoritative disciplinary parental action.

Perhaps you will find helpful thoughts in our booklet Enthusiasm which is on its way to you. Any reader wishing a free copy may write to us at Box 500, Pawling, N.Y. 12564.

New Year's parties popular in area homes

By JOE PILET

Each heart recalled a different name when they all sang Auld Lang Syne. They sang it at several parties in both Pass Christian and Bay St. Louis.

Parties were hosted in the homes of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Hursey and Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Stiebel in Pass Christian, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred de Ben and Mr. and Mrs. John McKenna in Bay St. Louis.

What is beautiful singing? It is songs sung by old friends and neighbors who gather in a festive mood to greet friends and neighbors on other days and recall the memories of the same events—people who are linked in the same mode of thinking.

Newcomers to lunch at Sheraton Inn

Some 55 members of the Gulf Coast Newcomers Club recently attended a social hour, luncheon and Christmas party in the Crown Room of the Broadwater Beach Hotel, Biloxi.

Mrs. Connie Geisenderfer, accompanied by Mrs. Ruth Smathers, presented a vocal program after which members sang carols and exchanged gifts.

The charity recipients for the month are The Salvation Army, Toys for Tots and a Guilford family in great need. Mr. and Mrs. William Gsell of Long Beach hosted the club's annual Christmas party.

A January luncheon will be Tuesday, Jan. 14 at the Sheraton Inn, Gulfport on Hwy. 49.

Guest speaker will be Mrs. Ruth Hunt who will speak about Mardi Gras.

For further information call Ruby Pickrell, 452-9928; Vera Reich, 832-0678; Mary Romeo, 388-3441; or Merle Jeffares, 896-4542.

Junior Auxiliary offers scholarships

The National Association of Junior Auxiliaries, including the Bay St. Louis Chapter, make annual contributions to a scholarship for graduate study in fields related to training of children with special needs, such as, Mental Health, Mental Retardation, Speech Therapy, Exceptional Child, Remedial Reading and other related fields, at the Committee's discretion.

Scholarships are not awarded for graduate work in general education. If more than one calendar year is required to complete studies, a recipient may reapply provided all previous agreements have been fulfilled satisfactorily.

The Scholarship Committee considers the applicant's purpose in life, dedication, intellectual attainment and scholastic record. Reasons for choosing profession must coincide with the Junior Auxiliary's purpose of helping children.

Official application forms are available from Junior Auxiliary chapters participating in the 1980-1981 Program or from Mrs. John E. Dougher, 467-3919, Bay St. Louis, Miss. Deadline is January 31, 1980.

Retirees see slides of fall foliage tour

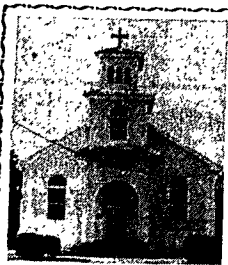

Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow O. Owen reported on a fall foliage tour of the New England states and Canada at the monthly meeting of the Gulf Breeze Chapter of the National Association of Retired Federal Employees.

The luncheon meeting was at the Holiday Inn on East Beach in Gulfport at 11 a.m., Friday.

The following officers, installed by Michael C. Nave, national president of NARFE, at the December Christmas Party, presided at the January meeting: Miss Elaine M. Martinovich, president; John Montgomery, first vice president; James Byrd, second vice president; Mrs. T.M. Dye, secretary; and Charles Tipples, treasurer.

Miss Martinovich invites Federal retirees and federal employees 50 years old or over, with at least 5 years of service, to attend meetings and to join NARFE and the Gulf Breeze Chapter which supports legislation beneficial to them, and reminds members to pay national and chapter dues to assure continued membership and receipt of Retirement Life Magazine.

Ag Affairs by Ed Blake

UNMARKED COUNTY ROADS

The lives of many thousands of rural Mississippians are unwittingly jeopardized by a failure of county and community leaders to arrive at a workable system of better marking county roads and maintaining road marker signs which too often are the targets of repeated acts of vandalism.

Recently an ambulance on the way to pick up an emergency case in a rural community was unable to find the residence because of the lack of signposts, and the rural resident died because of the delay. This type of thing may well happen again and again until rural areas see fit to effectively identify their access roads so that drivers into an unfamiliar area may quickly find the way to their destinations.

Some communities have taken cooperative action to solve this problem not only for emergency vehicles and many other types of service vehicles, but also for the growing volume of visitors who may get lost while in search of a certain rural home or farm.

While it is true that most emergency and commercial agencies serving rural areas make it a matter of good business to acquire the best service with the least cost, this leaves others who may be equally important without a means of navigating through the countryside.

Some county boards of supervisors already have tackled the problem by naming virtually all roads in the county and putting up official road marker signs at all or most intersections. Others have not yet gotten around to this project for various reasons. And the most pathetic situation of all exists where vandals destroy the signs that have been provided by either county officials or groups of citizens.

Some Mississippi rural communities have provided their own rural directories to outlying areas by posting a large sign at a rural intersection which lists the names of the families who live along the intersecting road. Adequately identified mailboxes are of great assistance in guiding a newcomer through a countryside of unfamiliar homes to a certain farmstead.

And while some few rural residents may, for reasons of their own, resent any aids to outsiders finding their way into the remotest areas, this attitude eventually will be replaced by better acceptance and encouragement as economic and cultural advantages of a better marked countryside prevail.

Already many rural residents are developing recreational services in remote areas which thrive on increased traffic from town. As labor costs continually climb so does the opportunity for vegetable and fruit farmers to benefit by offering "you pick" privileges to cost conscious consumers who welcome the outing as well as the savings they earn by their own willingness to work in the fields for less than the minimum wage. Some states provide printed directories to specialty farms which are valid only if county roads are marked.

Just as isolationism and protectionism have been replaced in the world by free trade and market practices, the same principles may be applied out on the back forty. Population pressures have pushed to the limits of the countryside. It is time we recognized this and better prepare ourselves for the modern age even in the most inaccessible areas of our land. It is consequently unfair for an up and coming rural Mississippi to be shackled by this neglect in modern times. Even less abdicable are the acts of vandalism perpetrated against society as a whole by a few demented or immature individuals who derive a warped sense of pleasure from destruction of signboards.

The sooner Mississippi asserts its hospitality with helpful markers and declares a position of off limits for vandalism by higher idealism and better law enforcement, the sooner this state will rise to new and better things!

But the commission's annual call for forest fire prevention has a more serious tone this year. Witness the following ominous warning of State Forester Jack Holman as the first dry, windy days of winter arrive in Mississippi:

"We're entering a potentially bad forest dollars to spend for the fuel and other commodities needed to maintain a top-notch mechanized fire protection organization. If we don't get a lot of well distributed rain and some extraordinary cooperation from the citizens of Mississippi in preventing and reporting wildfires during the coming months of high fire hazard the forests of this timber-rich state could suffer the greatest losses since the 1930's!"

Holman explains that necessary personnel reductions and rapidly rising fuel and utility costs could seriously hamper the ability of the forestry commission to protect the valuable timberlands of Hancock County should a bad fire season become reality.

"With the full cooperation of debris-burning landowners, motorists, hunters and others who carelessly start a great many of the fires we have each year in Mississippi, there's reason to hope that we can make it through spring green-up time without catastrophic losses," the State Forester declared.

Holman calls for greatly increased public cooperation in the apprehension of incendiaries who annually cost individual landowners and the general economy of Mississippi millions of dollars in losses by maliciously setting fire to the woods. "Every time a woods arsonist strikes he is taking money out of the pockets of every man, woman and child in our state," Holman stressed.

He points out that forestry is now the number two money crop in Mississippi—valued at nearly 600 million dollars last year, second only to soybeans. How can individual citizens help the foresters protect against forest fire losses? According to the State Forester the following personal steps would be tremendously helpful: Don't burn anything outdoors if there's the slightest chance your fire could escape. Call the county dispatching tower for a permit to burn. Current fire danger information is available from the tower. (Giving the tower the location of your planned burned could save a lot of valuable gasoline expended by Commission crews in checking unreported smokes.) Report field or forest fires you come across in your community to the tower. (Gas and time that would be used by crews in checking controlled safe fires will be saved.

County Agent's Notes by John Smith

SOYBEAN SEED QUALITY GOOD

Farmers should have high quality soybean seed for planting in 1980. Recent tests by the State Seed Testing Laboratory at Mississippi State University and other private labs show that germination of Mississippi-grown soybean seed is exceptionally high. Accelerated aging tests also indicate quality is good. Suppleness should be adequate.

YELLOWED LEAVES?

If your houseplants have yellowed leaves, they may be the result of overwatering, poorly drained potting soil or insufficient light. To help prevent this problem, provide plants plenty of light. Don't over water them in low light areas. For better drainage, use a light, loose soil mixture of equal parts of builder's sand, sphagnum moss and loamy soil. Following these procedures will increase your chances of growing green, healthy plants.

SEED CATALOGS AVAILABLE

The 1980 garden seed catalogs are available now. You can find order forms in most popular magazines. While most Mississippi gardeners order catalogs from southern seed companies, consider obtaining your catalog from a northern company. Northern companies offer recommended varieties for the south and they also have wider selections. The county Extension office has a list of recommended vegetable varieties for this area.

WEEKLY FARM MARKET REPORT

Feeder cattle and hog prices dropped in the week ending December 14 while grain prices were moderately higher, says Dr. David Trammell, Leader, Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service Marketing Department. Feeder steers, heifers and other calves sold steady to $3 lower per hundred pounds while steer calves dropped $5. In Mississippi, 400 to 500 pound medium frame No. 1 steers trended steady to $5 lower and ranged $77 to $93 per cwt. Hogs sold steady to 50 cents lower.

Meanwhile, corn ranged 8 cents lower to 16 cents higher per bushel. The cash spread was $2.68 to $3.11 1/2. Soybeans were 2 cents lower to 16 cents higher with a cash spread of $6.05 to $6.85 per bushel.

Broiler markets were barely steady to weak. Demand was light to fair. Live supplies were in close balance to adequate. Egg markets were fully steady. Supplies were adequate with demand good. Fluid milk production increased slowly.

Fruit and vegetable trading was moderate. Prices were mixed but mostly unchanged. Peanut trading was slow and demand was fairly light.

WINTER FORAGE

With recent rains, growth of winter grazing crops has been generally good. However, rapid temperature changes from warm to cold can quickly slow this growth, and may require adjustments in stocking rates.

If a large number of animals are left on a small grazing area during freezing weather, the grass may be permanently injured. Producers should have hay or silage available for severely cold weather. Cattle also require more feed during these periods to maintain growth. If it is available, begin using fescue that has accumulated growth. The sugar content of fescue growth in the fall may be more than double, research shows. Cattle will readily graze this growth, and it makes good feed after summer perennial grasses are gone.

The fescue should be grazed down by February so nitrogen and other needed fertilizer can be added for early spring growth.

INVESTMENT CREDIT

If you bought equipment or other property in 1979, be sure to check to see if it qualifies for investment credit on your 1979 tax return. Investment credit reduces a taxpayer's tax liability dollar for dollar. For example, if you bought a new tractor in 1979 costing $20,000, it will qualify for an investment credit of up to $2,000, 10 percent of the cost, on your 1979 tax return. This would reduce your taxes owed by $2,000. For information on qualifying property, contact the Internal Revenue Service.
